CHILD'S TRUST.

A picture memory brings to me:
I look across the years, and see
Myself beside my mother's knee.

I feel her gentle hand restrain
My selfish moods, and know again
A child's blind sense of wrong and pain.

But wiser now, a man gray grown,
My childhood's needs are better known,
My mother's chastening love I own.

Gray grown, but in our Father's sight
A child still groping for the light
To read his works as I ways aright,

I bow myself beneath his hand;
That pain itself for good was planned,
I trust, but cannot understand.

I fondly dream it needs must be
That, as my mother dealt with me,
So with his children dealth he.

I wait, and trust the end will prove
That here and there, below, above,
The chastening heals, the pain is love.

How to Write Well.

An article in the American Grocer insists that it is possible for every one to learn to write well, unless prevented by old age or some physical defect. It gives the following directions for acquiring a good hand writing:

The first thing to learn is the proper holding of the pen, and to acquire this we refer to the published directions on the subject.

Next, instead of proceeding to copy an elegant letter or copy-line, give especial attention to the elementary forms of letters, the strokes, "pot hooks," continuous "ms" and "us" given in writing exercises; nor the formal "pot-hooks" school children, though they should be mastered, so much as the more free and flowing simple turns of commercial penmanship.

If a person can make these properly, he must afterwards be able to write well, and until he is able to make them, his hand will always be poor.

The advantage of these elementary forms is, that they show where the fault lies, and concentrate the effort to the correction of that one thing.

They teach the first principles of writing, without understanding which one may try for a lifetime and never become a good penman,

In learning to write there are two distinct educations, that of the eye or mind, to an understanding of the characteristics of good writing, and of the hand, as the servant to do exactly the mind's bidding; it is a mistake to fancy that it is merely the hand which "catches" the trick of good writing.

Don't try to imitate a whole line at once, but go over each letter by itself with the eye.

Notice the particular shape and swing of letters and parts of letters, taking, say, the tail of a "y" or "g," imitating it, noting where you fall short, and keeping on trying till you are perfect.

This habit of taking your work to pieces and examining and practicing on it bit by bit, is what will give you progress.

Of course, later on, when you feel yourself capable, you can proceed to copy whole lines and sentences.

Lastly, supposing that you have considerably improved by the foregoing process, you want to fall into some particular style that shall be good and shall be your own.

It is an error to practice copying every piece of good writing you see, perhaps in a dozen different and opposite styles.

There is one specimen—some one person's hand writing, perhaps, or some particular engraved writing, of which you have remarked, "I would like to write like hat."

Take that and make it your standard, conform to it always and to that alone.

Don't Hurry.

Believe in traveling on step by step; don't expect to be rich in a jump. Slow and sure is better than fast and flimsey.—Perseverance, by its daily gains, enriches a man far more than fits and starts of fortunate speculation. Little fishes are sweet.—Every day a thread makes a skein in a year. Brick by brick, houses are built. We should creep before we walk, walk before we run, and run before we ride. In getting rich, the more haste, the less speed. Haste trips up its own heels. Don't give up a small business till you see that a large one will pay you better. Even crumbs are bread. Better a little furniture than an empty house. In these hard times, he who can sit on a stone and feed himself, had better not move. From bad to worse is poor improvement. A crust is hard fare, but none at all is harder. Don't jump out of the frying pan into the fire. Remember, many men have done very well in very small shops. A little trade with profit is better than a great concern at a loss; a small fire that warms you is better than a large fire that burns you. A great deal of water can be got from a small pipe, if the bucket is there to catch it. Large hares may be caught in a small wood. A sheep may get fat in a small meadow, and starve in a great desert. He who undertakes too much succeeds but little.

A young lady at the Ohio camp meeting asked the prayers of the assembly because she could not rest her eyes upon a certain young man in her neighborhood without feeling as though she must hug him to death.

A TRUE STOREY.

The author is known to many readers of the San Francisco Bulletin, from which we clip this. As a narrative of personal experience it is almost as graphic as De Quincey's Confessions of an Opium Eater:

EDITOR BULLETIN: My experience of the effect of Cinchona Rubra seems likely to prove of benefit to others, and I have therefore, and for that reason alone, requested a friend to submit this true recital to you for publication. Such confessions can only be made reluctantly, and ought to be taken as the outgrowth of a wish to help other sufferers to the attainment of a new peace, health and sanity.

A year ago, I seemed a hopeless wreck. I had lost business and social position, was without employment and was drinking hard. My own misery and the wretchedness of those at home was beyond expression, and beyond belief by any who have not closely watched the work of alcohol. Every friend was justly alienated, and I and mine were eating the bread of charity at the hands of those who pitted the wife whom I had sworn to protect. I cannot describe how bitter a slave I was to this bad appetite, nor the mean devices I would adopt to satisfy it. One epileptiform attack succeeded another, my mind was going, my nerves were shattered, and the great mystery of my disgrace was that I had not suffered a pronounced attack of delirium tremens, or even sunk into a drunkard's grave.

By the blessed sorcery of a Peruvian twig, this unspeakable curse, which had hung upon us for thirty years, is at last removed. Removed, not through any change of heart, or will, or intellect, not through my own sharp agony, not because of the awful shrinking from me of my little ones, not by the just damnation of public scorn, not by the sacred sorrows and wrestling supplications of my noble wife. For I would to-day be as powerless as ever in the grip of this fierce thirst, if my physical nature were not changed and renovated. On the 20th day of May last I began taking the Cinchona Rubra in doses (during the first four days) of a teaspoonful every three hours. During the three intervening nights I gradually ceased to dream that I was drunk—a horror which had for about a year made me shrink from bed-time, and which rivaled De Quincey's eloquent opium dream of "crocodiles and all slimy things confounded in Nilotic mud." My appetite for food revived slowly, but seemed to require more than anything else hot bowls of beef tea from Liebig's Extract, and plentiful slices of buttered toast.

The fourth night I dreamed again, but the menace of foul monsters yielded to boyish thoughts of icy brooks laughing through alder copses, and leaping trout, and the drum of the ruffled grouse.

On the fifth day, dimly hoping that my redemption was beginning, I dared to face the 3,800 grogshops of the city. The roar and rush and crowd of the streets pierced me like a lancet, but with my shiver of unrest came no accustomed thirst, and when a throb of positive hunger came to me, I went into a barroom for my lunch, feeling safe. There stood facing me the naked blandishments of all choice vintages and distillations and brews, and a white-aproned master of the mysterious formulæ of all mixed drinks. But their invocation seemed merely like the murmur of a Memnon, about whom I feel neither knowledge nor curiosity, neither terror nor reverence, neither longing nor dislike.

Dazed by this novel insensibility to temptation, I went home, but do not care to enlarge upon the surprise and joy of the welcome which awaited me. I had terribly undercalculated a nervousness which ought to have kept me in the house a day or two longer; but quiet came toward nightfall, and the assurance that I was less "possessed of the Devil" gave peaceful sleep again.

That day was the crisis. From then until now it has been as impossible for me to drink as though whiskey were molten iron. I feel neither horror nor disapproval of the long list of intoxicants. I simply cannot touch them.

Were I to phrase this fact of absolute indifference a myriad ways, they would do poor justice to its value, however much iteration might tire you. For it is this which proves to my entire conviction that my drunkenness was a disease, and that I am cured because it is a curable disease.

If, in other words, there had occurred during the last eleven months one momentary impulse toward relapse, I might well join the experienced Gough in pronouncing even such reformation as my own a delusion and a sham, a bubble to be pricked by some provocative at some devil's opportunity or other. Agreeing that no man is safe as long as his nature is characterized by this "dipsomania" or thirst-madness, I am proof enough that, at any rate in certain cases, the appetite may be killed while the individual is kept alive. Such an one is saved because he has no will left to himself in the matter; he is sobered and restored, so to speak, in spite of himself.

I bought one 8-ounce vial of the extract after another, at Burnett's drug-store, and presume that the preparations of any other respectable druggists are equally efficient.

Beginning with a teaspoonful every three hours, I have gradually reduced my doses to a present quantity of quarter-teaspoonful twice or three times a week. Beside its safeguard against any return of the old curse, this conqueror of the quinine tree is a superb tonic; and I would have dis[c]ontinued right from exhaustion and over-work during the ill-paid months which next succeeded my recovery, but for its strengthening aid.

I speak of all this not in a spirit of prolix egotism, but because some seemingly slight symptom or fact may possess actual and special importance to some one else. How profound and merited was my fall some of the friends who now cluster around me know to the full, and they share the joy of my happy wife and innocent children in my present success. Stripped of the dead drag of this poison of mind and body and soul, every faculty seems equipped with vigor; and to perfect my comfort it only remains that He who has saved me may so save another through my agency.

ROBERT TOOMBS IN CONGRESS.

[Philadelphia Press.]

It was Mr. Wade who originated and brought forward that great measure, the "Homestead bill," or, as he was pleased to call it, "land for the landless." The Southern men at once antagonized this bill with the slavery question, and Mr. Wade, accepting the issue, rushed to the contest with the battle cry of "Land for the landless against niggers for the niggerless!" The Southern men sought in every way to defeat the bill, but Wade made a powerful argument, and for the time completely routed his enemies.

While the bill was under discussion, Mr. Toombs referred to it, with a sneer, as a measure for white paupers, when Mr. Wade immediately arose and said:

"Sir, you sneer at the Homestead bill because it gives land to the landless, do you? What is your pet scheme? Buying Cuba? Stealing niggers for the niggerless? We will go to the country upon it—land for the landless against niggers for the niggerless!"

Wade one day replied to Toombs, and to all appearance used language which would compel Toombs to challenge him. Several friends went to Wade and begged him to desist: but the old man grew more and more violent, until Toombs indicated his intention of calling Wade to account for the language he was using, when Wade quietly sat down, seemingly having accomplished his object. The Southern men looked at each other in surprise, and it was manifest to all that Wade had deliberately sought a quarrel with Toombs.

That night a friend of the Southern Senator called on Mr. Wade to know if he would retract the offensive words he had used. "No, I won't take back a d—d word," was Wade's emphatic reply. "Then," said the friend of Mr. Toombs, "it will be necessary for Mr. Toombs to challenge you to mortal combat." "That is just what I want, and we might have got to the point without all this parlaver," said Wade. "You surely cannot be in earnest, Mr. Wade?" said the Southerner.

"Why, of course I am. You see, sir, we Northern men do not like to fight. Now, I am opposed to the code, and so are my constituents, but you fellows have broke Sumner's head, and we must spunk up a little or you will break all our heads. The shortest way to end the matter is to kill off a few of you, and I have picked on old Toombs as my man. He will have to challenge me; then, of course, I will have the choice of weapons, and I'll take my old rifle, and d—n me if I don't bring him down at the first crack."

When Toombs heard what Wade said he replied: "I can't challenge him; if I do the old brute will likely kill me."

It appears that Toombs and Wade had been out together shooting with a rifle several times, and while Toombs could shoot well with a pistol he was a poor rifle shot. Wade was an old hunter, and at a distance of a hundred yards could hit a dollar almost every shot. Mr. Wade afterward said to me:

"If old Toombs had challenged me that time, as I expected he would, I would have put a patch on my coat over the heart, and made him do the same thing; then the old fellow would have got demoralized when he saw me drawing a bead on his patch, and would have missed me, while d—n me if I wouldn't have cut his patch the first fire."

Not only did Mr. Toombs refuse to challenge Wade, but no Southern member of Congress could ever be induced to send him a challenge, no matter what he might say.

There are still some very honest men in the world. A Tennessee merchant named Park had a regular credit customer named Southall for many years. They settled at the beginning of every year, Mr. Park rendering a statement of his account, and Mr. Southall taking it home to compare with one he always kept. Invariably he came back and said, "Mr Park, your account is correct except I find that you have failed to charge me with such and such articles I got, amounting to a small sum." This went on for a number of years, until Mr. Park said to him, "Mr. Southall, I won't be bothered with your account any longer. Keep the account yourself and I will keep none, and we will settle by yours." And so they did for a long time, till Southall died.

Henry Ward Beecher regards tobacco as the most selfish of luxuries, and declares he never knew a dozen users of it who cared whether they smelled agreeably or not. Unless arbitrarily restrained, they will, he says, render life intolerable, driving people out of seats in cars and steamboats, and absolutely making home unendurable.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. April 12th, 1880.

The Democrats who were so warlike last year are holding in their prancing steeds, having made up their minds that they never open their mouths without furnishing fresh political capital for the Republicans. How long this will last nobody can tell. When they found they could not choke off debate on the troops at the polls clause of the army bill, they sat right back and said, "take all you want to; we will not reply." But the severe words of the Republican leaders have burned them beyond endurance, and I would not wonder if they opened their mouths to blunder again shortly.

The best evidence that the Democrats are frightened, is the hesitation in unseating Senator Kellogg of Louisiana. For many days the Democratic Senators have been caucusing on his case, and the elections Committe have earnestly urged action But there is no action, and now it leaks out that several Democratic Senators have said that they would not vote to steal that seat, and hence the freaters dare not move for fear of ig .ominious defeat. Their seat-stealing career in the Senate and House both therefore appears to be suspended if not ended. The approaching campaign has a wholesome effect on them.

I take occasion here to contradict a report circulated by the supporters of Grant and Sherman, that the National Blaine Club of this city is circulating documents attacking rival candidates. Though the accusations have been made, not one single document has been brought forward to prove them. This Club is not carrying on a campaign of slander or personal detraction against any one. It simply advocates the nomination of Mr. Blaine. It was organized without consultation with the Maine Senator, and in his absence, from the city, and even if the Club had sent out documents as is charged, Senator Blaine could not be made to suffer; he is not responsible for the actions of the Club. Mr. Bartlett, the Secretary, says that the operations of this Club in the canvass will be such, that, no matter who wins, there will be no hard feeling among the supporters of defeated candidates. I repeat, the Blaine Club has never sent out a document attacking any rival candidate.

Wm. H. Vanderbilt has just made another investment in Government bonds, making in all that he holds $51,000,000. He is the largest holder of bonds of a single denomination in the world.

MAXWELL.

JUDGING A MAN BY HIS LOOKS.—Yesterday morning in the Superior Court there were thirteen prisoners arraigned to plead concerning charges of burglary and grand larceny. When the thirteenth man, Bill Sheets, alias "Pea Ridge," an old time burglar, who has already spent his youth in San Quentin, stood up, the Judge said, "Bill Sheets, alias 'Pea Ridge,' you are charged with burglary. Are you guilty?" "Sure, yer 'oner, an' if it's gooilthy I am, do yez thinks I be afther tellin' yes ov it? I pleads not gooilthy," was the response of Bill. "All right," said the Judge, and turning to one of the most eminent members of the bar, said, "You will please act as counsel for the defendant." At this the prisoner turned and calmly surveyed the placid and blonde countenance of his appointed champion, and then addressed the Court as follows: "Sure, Jooidge, an' if it's that yez afther given me for a loiyer, I pleads gooilthy, and be done with it at once." Then as he turned and pointed to the robust form of a youthful member of the bar, he continued, "But if yoill give me him, as what is a foine loiyer, oill plade not gooilthy." The prisoner was allowed his choice of counsel.—Sacramento Record.

The Secretary of the Treasury has received $100,000 for the conscience fund from New York. It was from New York, and labeled "income tax," but there was nothing to show that Uncle Sammy Tilden had sent it.

Dr. George Munckton, formerly a well-to-do druggist and physician of Carson, and owner of the Dunderburg mine in this county, died in San Francisco on the 14th. He died in poverty at the age of 60 years.

Eight miles of snowsheds are crushed on the Central Pacific Road, and it is estimated that it will require 40 locomotives and 1,000 men to clear the track between Reno and the summit by to-day.

Quite a number of carpenters and machinists are talking of leaving the Comstock for the new mining camps of Colorado and New Mexico.

Edison, it is reported, is coming to California to try his new process for extracting gold. Let him go to Grass Valley, as that is the graveyard of "gold processes."

The Carson Mint has been abolished and the machinery removed to the Mississippi Valley for a new Mint.

Dr. Kenealy, of the Tichborne case notoriety, is dead.

The Carson Times is to be enlarged and become an evening paper.

Warm and nourish the viper and he will sting you—is the last Bodie quotation.

THE PLACERVILLE ROAD.

The snows of this Winter have been disastrous to the Central Pacific Railroad—more so than any two Winters we have experienced since the road was first opened. Miles upon miles of snowsheds have been swept away, trains have been wrecked and lives lost; and freight amounting to thousands of dollars has been strewn along the road; and the general business of the road has been demoralized to a very great extent, and to a heavy financial loss to the great corporation operating the road. It is well known that the Directors of the Central Pacific have regretted that they did not adopt Judah's survey over the Placerville route. Had the road been built over that route the company would have been the gainer by the millions of dollars it has lost on the present route. On the Placerville road a heavy snow storm would have no terrors for the employee and traveler, and scarcely an hour would be lost on account of snow. "Snowshoe" Thompson, who was better acquainted with the Placerville route than any other man of his time, used to say that he could pilot a train of cars over that route, and through a pass in the mountains where the snowfall would not be greater than twelve inches in the heaviest Winter. The danger to life attending a trip over the present route in the Winter should cause the Directors of the Central Pacific to seriously consider the project of extending the Placerville Railroad from Shingle Springs to connect with their road at Reno. This extension would relieve the Central Pacific of the Carson and Comstock traffic, as well as the trade of Bodie, Candelaria, and other districts in this section. It would facilitate the development of the great mineral resources of El Dorado and Alpine counties, through which it will pass, and benefit the agriculturalists of El Dorado, by giving them a good market for their fruit and general produce. A railroad over the mountains of El Dorado would enable the road to do a profitable business in transporting lumber and wood for the Comstock. The losses of the railroad company this Winter, alone, would build many a mile of new road. The freighting business over the mountains for Mono and Esmeralda counties will be immense, and we cannot but believe that the extension of the Placerville Railroad would pay well for the investment required to do the work.

HIS ENDING.

A telegram to this morning's Free Press gives the startling news of the death of Charles DeYoung at the hands of J. M. Kalloch, son of Mayor Kalloch, whom he attempted to murder last Summer. About seven o'clock last evening young Kalloch entered the S. F. Chronicle office and inquired for DeYoung. He was sent to his private office, which he entered and found DeYoung. They exchanged a few words, when Kalloch stepped back, drew a revolver and fired five times in rapid succession, each ball doing its deadly work—instantly killing DeYoung, who has met his death in a manner similar to that planned for the death of Mayor Kalloch. The ending of Charles DeYoung's life in this manner was not unlooked for. He came to it by an unprincipled style of journalism that should not find favor, but which is being aped, but poorly, by a portion of the Bodie press.

BODIE, APRIL 24, 1880.

The CHRONICLE Office is on the second floor of "Goodson's Building," east side of Main street, between Standard Avenue and Green street.

JOB PRINTING.—Job printing of the finest description will be furnished at this office at Sacramento prices.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.—Our evening cotemporary charges us with being opposed to the "Typographical Union." That is not so! If the wealthy and well-to-do News, Press and Standard are willing and able to pay high wages, it would ill become us to advocate and work for a reduction of expenses in the offices of our competitors. The only objection we had to the Union was that it offensively meddled with the workings of our office. We paid compositors good wages—far better than could be earned in any other branch of female industry. In proof of this, we submit the following, being the earnings of one of our lady compositors, on the daily, for the weeks ending

Mar. 6.	50,000 at	50 cents,	$25 00
Mar. 13.	52,000	"	26 00
Mar. 20.	46,000	"	23 00
Mar. 27.	41,000	"	20 50
Apr. 3.	31,000	"	15 50
Apr. 10.	31,000	"	15 50
Apr. 17.	41,000	"	20 50
	292,000		$146 00

Average, per week, $20 86.

And the Union demanded that we pay $43 80 in addition to the above—$189 80 for forty-two days of indoor, easy and instructive work. That our cotemporaries pay compositors sixty-five cents per 1000 ems when they can procure from San Francisco the needful help at fifty cents, is no evidence of magnanimity or love for the workingmen. The financial conditions of those offices are well known to our citizens. They know that it is not business to purchase goods at high prices, or pay high wages when equally as good can be had at lower figures. Would it not be to the credit of our cotemporaries to retrench in the composing room and pay their long-winded debts, instead of standing in for exorbitant prices. They may say that it is none of our business. Well, we admit that—in one sense; but their credit being below par, the complaints regarding unpaid bills are grating to those of the profession whose credit is good. Hence our solicitation as to an economical management of their affairs. It may be that the "paper boom" has not reached the offices of our friends, or does not seriously affect them. An advance of sixty per cent. on paper has necessitated changes among the leading journals throughout the country. The Chicago Times advanced its subscription one cent, but, its list falling off one-half, soon fell back to the old rate and reduced the size. Not so, however, the S. F. Chronicle. The "boom" entailing a loss of $50,000, it was necessary to increase its price, decrease its reading matter or reduce wages. Having paid Union rates—fifty cents, for the past ten years, it decided to reduce composition to forty-five cents—rates paid by the Alta, Bulletin, Call and Post, while Bancroft and Bacon & Co. only paid forty cents, Carlos White thirty, Sacramento, Oakland, San Jose, and Stockton thirty-five, although in the two latter places many of the compositors are paid weekly wages ranging from $5 to $12, and in Denver and Kansas City it is down to twenty-five cents. The Union attempted to bulldose the Chronicle, but, unlike our cotemporaries, having the coin, its compositors were promptly discharged, except the foreman and eight others, who wisely deserted the Union, and their places at once filled with "rats." The Union in San Francisco is dead, and tramps are around.

TOO MUCH "TAFFY".—As it has become customary for the Bodie papers to give each other good advice, we suggest that the Standard give the members of the Typographical Union a little less "taffy" and more of the substantials of this world, by giving them more reading matter to "set" at 65 cents per thousand. This can easily be done by taking out the NINE COLUMNS of DEAD advertisements it has been running for the past six months! This is a very healthy (?) exhibit for a paper that claims to be the leading paper of this city. It is really the poorest daily paper published in the State, for there is really "nothing in it"—but "dead" advertisements.

THE WORST.—The worst storm of the season was that of Wednesday last. It was not of long duration, but it was "lightning" while it lasted. The wind blew a gale and drifted the snow badly, putting a stop to outside work and travel. There never was a more disgusted set of people than ours have been this week, with a continuance of cold, stormy weather, coupled with empty woodsheds, and with wood at $30 a cord—and not to be had at that.

IN LEAGUE.—Our daily papers must have been in league with the woodmen last Fall, when they advised the people of this city not to lay in a supply of wood for Winter use, as there was a large supply on hand, and it could not reach a high figure. As a large number of families believed these statements, they neglected to lay in a sufficiency of wood, and consequently there is more or less suffering.

THE BULWER.—The late annual meeting of the Bulwer Consolidated Mining Company resulted in the election of the following Trustees: Daniel Cook, John F. Boyd, Seth Cook, R. N. Graves, Monroe Thomson, W. S. Wood and M. R. Cook. The Board of Trustees elected the following officers: President, Daniel Cook; Secretary, Wm. Willis; Treasurer, Nevada Bank; Superintendent, Wm. Irwin.

REPLY TO THE SICK ROOM.

The extraordinary letter from the sick room of R. D. Ferguson, reflecting upon the motives of the Pacific Coast Pioneers and its members, requires a notice. The Pioneers Association is not a benevolent institution; it is simply an organization for social enjoyment and it never was in a position to assume charge of Mr. Ferguson and become responsible for a comparatively unlimited indebtedness on his account. At every meeting, his particular friend, Col. B. B. Jackson, forcibly impressed the idea that Mr. Ferguson was in destitute circumstances and that it was absolutely necessary that we should assist him. Under such a pressure, the Secretary was instructed to appeal to the lawyers of Carson and Virginia for aid, and in response to it, Col. Ellis sent to the Pioneers (not Mr. Ferguson) $50, and the letter inclosing it said: "We may be able to assist you further." Assist who? Not Mr. Ferguson. Assist "you"—the Pioneers. Our Secretary retained the funds two weeks before Mr. F. knew of it. The Pioneers subscribed liberally and paid their money freely in behalf of the sick man. The other "branch" of his friends subscribed liberally—on paper; but one dollar of the Pioneers' money was of more value than a million dollars in promises. Coin "counts." The unpaid debts of the gentleman amount to over $600, and yet he is indignant that any one or any organization should for a moment think he is unable to liquidate them, and holds up to odium, and make public, the Christian acts of the unselfish Pioneers, who have been actuated by the best of motives. That he is in circumstances that relieve us of further care is gratifying to the Pioneers, and we regret that his friends have deceived us into the folly of intruding and meddling with his sick affairs. As to my course I have to say that I often called upon Mr. Feguson; was a contributor to the purse of $30 handed him; contributed at the meetings: donated a picture to the Ladies' Aid Association which sold for $7 50; had always said a good word in his behalf, and knowing that the $50 was sent to the Pioneers, felt disposed to pay it to the first nurse he had, and consequently made the motion to so pay it. But the sentiments of some were that Mr. Ferguson's "pride" would be wounded if we so acted, therefore the motion was withdrawn. The letter from the "Sick Room" says:

"Messrs. Folger and Harrington, who seem to take such an unbounded interest in the payment of my debts—none of which are due them—have any special choice of my creditors to be preferred, I hope they will have opportunity to name the same while I yet have strength to appreciate the same, and let it be placed in their hands for distribution, otherwise they will oblige me by no further meddling in my affairs."

If I had the disbursement of the money I would pay it to his nurse who for 72 long days and nights waited upon him; gave up his business; contracted a board bill of $83; mortgaged his homestead, in San Jose, to procure the necessaries of life for his family, and yet not one dollar has been paid him, although Mr. Kerr—the nurse "unknown to the members of the Society" has doubtless been remembered by the sick man. Again, last week Mr. Harrison and myself spent one afternoon, splashing through mud and slush, making arrangements to comfortably send Mr. Ferguson to Sacramento, and yet, forsooth, this sick man says: I "never done more than look into my room more than once; who has never offered any aid to me." On behalf of the Pioneers I will say, that it is a great relief to know that our services in that direction are no longer needed.

R. M. FOLGER.

OUR MINES.

ADDENDA.

G. A. McCornick, Supt.

This company's three compartment shaft has attained a depth of 420 feet. During the past week a marked change in the formation has occurred, the shaft having cut into a soft vein of porphyry of such a nature as to necessitate heavier timbering, the size of the lumber now being used being 10x10 and four feet apart. The new shaft has now reached a point 11 feet below the deepest workings of the old incline. Sinking will be continued uninterruptedly till a depth of 500 feet is reached, when a station will be opened and crosscuts started east and west, for the purpose of intersecting the ledges developed in the old workings. No doubt but at the depth above mentioned the Addenda will prove a paying proposition

TIOGA.

W. H. LENT, Secretary,—DEAR SIR; We have advanced the west crosscut from the 800-foot level 23 feet, during the week. This working is continually cutting seams of quartz such as we cut in the shaft, all of which give encouraging prospects. The rock passed through is birds-eye porphyry of the most favorable nature, some of it being slightly decomposed by water, and, showing red sulphurets of iron, all of which is a very good indication of our proximity to a vein. In the east crosscut we made 11 feet. The rock has been quite hard, but to-day we have a change of ground, which it it continues will enable us to make better progress. We have timbered 40 feet of the Syndicate drift during the week.

C. H. GOLDING, Supt.

UNIVERSITY.

D. F. Moore, Supt.

At this promising mine a drifting station is now being opened at a depth of 510 feet. This station will he completed during the ensuing week, when sinking will be resumed and continued down to the next level, when crosscutting for the University ledge will be commenced simultaneously at both points. During the past week, and at the time sinking was suspended the ground worked easily, and rapid progress is expected when sinking is again resumed.

MINING LOCATIONS.—The following locations have been recorded by Recorder Geo. Macartney:

Mill-site, O. K. mine. 5 acres; Isaac Missmere, S. C. Burbank.

Caledon, 1250 feet, east crosscut, 230-level, Oro mine; Thomas Steel.

Columbia, 1250 feet, west crosscut, 230-level, Oro mine; Thomas Steel.

Albion, 1250 feet, west crosscut, 230-level, Oro mine; Thomas Steel.

Rogers, 1250 feet, western slope of Silver Hill; Thomas Steel.

Beck, 1500 feet, east crosscut, 550-level, Maryland Con. mine; John G. Beckstrum.

Farnsworth, 1500 feet, east crosscut, 550-level, Maryland Con. mine; John G. Beckstrum.

Sherman, 1500 feet; L. A. Scowden, Chas. W. Tilden.

Lenora, 1500 feet, relocation of True Business, Lenora E. Orth.

Great Republic Con., 900 feet, relocation of the Baltimore Lode, E. D. Sawyer.

LAND OFFICE ADVERTISING.—At this late hour the Standard offers to take applications for mining patents for $25, and timber land for $10. There was a time that it charged from $75 to $100 for the former and from $20 to $25 for the latter. Our charges have been $30 for the former and $10 for the latter. But our cotemporary is too late. The Receiver's paper gobbled up over 100 timber advertisements for which it charged $10 and $15—just what it could get. Too late, because the timber land business is about over, only 10 or 12 remaining. If it is any consolation to our evening friend we will say that the Free Press is about exhausted in that line. A few crumbs fell to our lot—some 15 or so.

ODD FELLOWS' CELEBRATION.—On Monday next the Bodie Lodge will celebrate the Sixty-first Anniversary of the Order. An oration, poem, singing, music and procession will be the order of the day, and in the evening a grand ball will be given at Miners' Union Hall. A general invitation is extended to join in the procession and participate in the exercises. We bespeak a pleasant time to all who may attend.

OUR SCHOOL.—Our public school closed yesterday with a public examination, which was satisfactory to the teachers, parents and visitors. The school will not be reopened before the 1st of July. In the meantime Miss Whitcomb will open a private school at the School House on Monday morning, and continue it till the school reopens in July.

THE BENEFIT.—Our people should not forget the benefit to-night, at Miners' Union Hall, for Hon. R. D. Ferguson. The proceeds will be devoted to the removal of Mr. Ferguson to Sacramento, where he has relatives. It is hoped a good sum will be realized.

SHUTTING DOWN.—Owing to the wood famine several of our mines have been compelled to suspend work for awhile. It don't pay to run a mine with wood at $30 a cord.

THROWING PEARLS.—After the expose of the business of the Standard, it looks like "throwing pearls before swine" to support it. A golden opportunity thrown away and not appreciated.

TO ELECT.—The Board of Supervisors, a their next meeting, on May 3d, will be required to elect a Board of Education for this county, under the new School Act.

JEWELRY.—L. Hollander has the best and largest stock of jewelry and watches in town.

RELIGIOUS.—Divine Service is held in Miners' Union Hall every Sunday at 10 A. M., by Rev. I. M. Cassin, Catholic Priest.

WILL MEET.—The Board of Supervisors will meet in regular session at Bridgeport on next Monday week—May 3d.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. G. B. Hinkle will hold divine services in Odd Fellows' Hall, tomorrow at 11 o'clock A. M. and 7½ o'clock P. M. Sabbath School at 2 P. M. All are cordially invited to attend.

FINE CONFECTIONERY.—Mrs. Swan has opened a confectionery store in Abbot's building on Main street, between Standard Avenue and Mill street. She intends to keep a fresh supply at all times at reasonable prices.

ADVERTISE IN THE BODIE CHRONICLE.

THE CHRONICLE.

Hearty Suppers.

It requires about five hours for the stomach to work on an ordinary meal and pass it out of itself, when it falls into a state of repose. Hence, if a man eats three times a day, his stomach must work fifteen hours out of the twenty-four. But the multitude of mechanics, who are wildly clamorous for "only eight hours a day," do not hesitate to impose on their stomachs fifteen hours' work, nearly double.

After a night's sleep we wake up with a certain amount of bodily vigor, which is faithfully portioned out to every set of muscles, each its rightful share, the stomach among others. When the external body gets weary after a long day's work the stomach bears his share of the fatigue; but if, when the body is weary with the day's toil, we put it to bed, giving the stomach meanwhile a five hour's task, which must be performed, we impose, upon the very best friend we have; the one that gives us the greatest amount of earthly enjoyments; and if this overtaxing so continued it must as certainly wear out prematurely as the body itself will if it is overworked every day.

And if persons eat between meals, then the stomach has no rest from breakfast in the morning until one, two, three or four o'clock the next day; hence it is that so many persons have dyspepsia; the stomach is worked so much and so constantly, that it becomes too weak to work at all. It is to be hoped that every intelligent person will press these things on the attention of their children as a matter of conscience, because dyspepsia, like consumption, has its foundation laid in a large majority of cases during the "teens" of life.

Grecian Wives.

In the writings of Xenophen we have a charming picture of a husband who had received into his arms his young wife of fifteen. He speaks to her with extreme kindness, but in the language that would be used to a little child. Her task, he tells her, is to be like a queen bee, dwelling continually at home and superintending the work of the slaves. She must distribute to each their task, must economize the family income, and must take especial care that the house is strictly orderly—the shoes, the pots, and the clothes, always in their places. It is also, he tells her, a part of her duty to tend her sick slaves; but his wife interrupted him, exclaiming, "Nay, but that will indeed be the most agreeable of my offices, if such as I treat with kindness are likely to be grateful and to love me more than before." With a very tender and delicate care to avoid everything resembling a reproach, the husband persuades his wife to give up the habits of wearing high-heeled boots, in order to appear tall, and of coloring her face with vermillion and white lead. He promises her that, if she faithfully performs her duties, he will himself be the first and most devoted of her slaves. He assured Socrates that, when any domestic dispute arose, he could extricate himself admirably, if he was in the right; but that, whenever he was in the wrong, he found it impossible to convince his wife that it was otherwise.

A POSTOFFICE INCIDENT.—About sixty years ago an incident happened in the New York postoffice which shows that our grandfathers knew something of dull times. An old merchant sent a lad to the postoffice with money to pay the postage on a letter. The office was closed, and the lad put the letter and money into the letter-box. The next morning the lad went to the office to receive the merchant's letters, and mentioned to the clerk what he had done the previous night.

"That was all right," said the clerk; "We knew the money was to pay that letter's postage, for there was no other letter in the box"

Fancy a boy trying that little expedient in the New York postoffice of 1880!

Andersonville cemetery, in Georgia, is visited by many Northerners, but South-erners avoid the spot. On the visitors' book are many strange inscriptions, mainly of passionate denunciation of the South by relatives of the dead. There are a thousand stones bearing the word "Unknown." There are fourteen thousand graves. Some of the stones are very handsome, and the graves are kept green.

Feelings come and go like light troops following the victory of the present, but principles, like troops of the line, are undisturbed and stand fast.
